Overview

In 2020, the New York State Committee for the Coordination of Police Services to Elderly Persons focused on developing and supporting training to improve the law enforcement response to elder abuse and raising awareness of the resources available to elderly individuals. The Committee also explored issues unique to older persons who are homebound due to the Covid-19 pandemic.

New York State Executive Law 844-b outlines the duties of the Committee, which include the support and development of programs, training, prevention practices and technical support to law enforcement agencies and service providers to combat crimes against the elderly.

The Committee met virtually pursuant to Executive Order 202.1, which suspended the portion of New York State law requiring meetings to take place in person, on Dec. 11, 2020.

Committee Activities

Law Enforcement Training

The Office of Public Safety, with support from the Committee, collaborated with Lifespan of Greater Rochester to facilitate a training for police professionals titled "Identifying and Investigating Financial Exploitation." Originally offered in two sessions in 2019, the training was converted to a full-day training based on student feedback. Three in-person trainings scheduled in 2020 were postponed due to the pandemic and Committee members decided to shift the course to an online webinar providing a brief overview of elder abuse, followed by an in-depth discussion of financial exploitation, including common scams and best practices and resources for law enforcement investigating financial exploitation. The webinar is in development and slated to be offered for the first time in early 2022.

Program Support and Informational Updates

Agency Initiative Roundtable Discussion

The Covid-19 pandemic presented unique challenges for the elderly population, particularly those who are homebound or live with their abusers. To address this concern, Committee members identified approaches being utilized in their agencies to address these challenges and assist elderly clients. The Committee identified prevention and education best practices to increase public awareness of elderly communities through informational documents, live webinars and social media campaigns on various scams that target the elderly.

Additionally, the Committee continued to endorse and collaborate with the Office of Public Safety to disseminate information to law enforcement regarding the availability of grantfunded enhanced multi-disciplinary teams (E-MDTs), managed by the New York State Office for the Aging. E-MDTs investigate and intervene in complex cases of elder abuse. The teams bring together professionals from various disciplines, including Adult Protective Services, aging services, health and human services and law enforcement, to provide an effective and efficient means of addressing complex cases of abuse of older adults (aged 60 and older). The enhancement provides access to forensic accountants, geriatric psychiatrists (or other qualified mental health professionals) and community legal services.

Law Enforcement Resources Toolkit Updates

The Committee continues to add new resources and tools to their Elder Abuse Law Enforcement Toolkit. The electronic toolkit is easily accessible to law enforcement and other stakeholders in the field of elder abuse prevention. The Committee expanded the toolkit in 2020 with updated contact information for the New York State Enhanced Multi-disciplinary teams, as well as information regarding the "Helpline for Concerned Persons Information Sheet," which is open to any concerned caller who suspects elder abuse. In addition, the Helpline will offer support and assistance by providing resources or referrals to agencies, as needed. The toolkit was re-distributed to the law enforcement community to share the updated resources.

Future Activities of the Committee

The Committee and staff from the DCJS Office of Public Safety, in consultation with experts and service providers, will continue to identify programs designed to assist law enforcement with safeguarding elderly persons.

In addition, the Committee, in collaboration with Office of Public Safety and Lifespan of Greater Rochester, will support the facilitation of the financial exploitation training series, which aims to provide first responders and investigators with tools to better detect and address financial exploitation of elder victims. Because of potential training limitations due to the COVID-19 pandemic, the Committee is exploring online training options through live and pre-recorded webinars.
